"Before we pledge ourselves to any of the many candidates who are now seeking office in Kentucky, we want to know something about how these candidates, in the past legislature, voted when it came to the Libel Bill that was presented by the Kentucky Press Association."—Madisonville Graphic.

Not only how they voted, but if not members of the legislature, how their influence was used with those who were members.

Magistrate Hoffman, of Louisville, announces that he will apply the Sunday closing law to drug stores, and all other business houses that are permitted to run under a liberal construction of the law. Gov. Beckham, who opposes this because he says it is intended to make the liquor law odious, says he will pardon those fined under the "Hoffman blue laws." Hoffman, however, is defiant and says he can fine them as fast as the Governor can pardon them and will start with tomorrow's violations.

The News-Democrat says: "One umbrella would nearly cover the crowd that came to Paducah's Home Coming." It would take a pretty good size tent to cover all that came here, and they are dropping in almost every day yet.

BY ONE VOTE

The Graded School Proposition Was Lost.

There was a close and exciting election held in Lafayette Thursday on the question of establishing free graded schools and the school proposition was defeated by only one majority and one man arrived a minute too late whose vote would have tied the returns. The vote stood, ayes 46, noes 47. The school advocates maintained a slight lead in the forenoon, but this was slowly overcome before the polls closed at four o'clock. The vote was by the viva voce system and only whites participated. The proposition was for a tax of 50 cents on each $100 of assessed property and a poll tax of $1.50. The school people are much disappointed over their defeat by such a narrow margin.

A strong wind was blowing and the fire jumped from one shock to another until ten or fifteen acres had been burned over. Cox took to his heels and has not been seen since. He had been working for Mr. Garrett about three weeks.
